Plaintiff Laura Dana ("Plaintiff") brings this action on behalf of herself and all others similarly situated against THE HERSHEY COMPANY and HERSHEY CHOCOLATE & CONFECTIONERY CORPORATION ("Defendants" or "Hershey"). Plaintiff's allegations against Defendants are based upon information and belief and upon investigation of Plaintiff's counsel, except for allegations specifically pertaining to Plaintiff, which are based upon each Plaintiff's personal knowledge.

I. OVERVIEW

 America's largest and most profitable food companies should not tolerate child labor, much less child slave labor, anywhere in their supply chains. These companies should not turn a blind eye to known human rights abuses or shirk from investigating and preventing potential human rights abuses by their suppliers, especially when the companies consistently and affirmatively represent that they act in a socially and ethically responsible manner. When these food companies fail to uphold their responsibility for ensuring the absence of child and slave labor in their supply chains, their misconduct has the profound consequence of supporting and encouraging such labor. And when these food companies fail to disclose the use of child and slave labor in their supply chains to consumers, they are deceived into buying products they would not have otherwise and thereby unwittingly supporting child and slave labor themselves through their product purchases. Such food companies should be required to make restitution to the consumers they have deceived and to ensure the absence of child and slave labor in their supply chains in the future.

2. Chocolate is perhaps the most beloved confectionary ingredient in the world. Most major companies that purchase chocolate obtain it from sources on the Ivory Coast. The lives of the people who harvest cocoa are nothing short of terrible. The labor in harvesting cocoa is performed by slave laborers – often children. Many of these children are taken from poor countries like Mali. Some of these children are abducted, and there are countless missing children claims. To make matters worse, sometimes extremely poor people sell their own children into slavery for as little as $30. Children that are sometimes not even 10 years old carry huge sacks that are so big that they cause them serious physical harm. Much of the world's chocolate is quite literally brought to us by the back-breaking labor of child slaves.

3. Hershey is one of the largest and most profitable chocolate companies in the United States. Among its products, Hershey markets and distributes chocolate products, including Hershey's Bars, Hershey's Kisses, Reese's, KitKat, Rolo, Heath, Skor, Special Dark, Krackel, Milk Duds, Whoppers, Mr. Goodbar, Almond Joy, Mounds, 5th Avenue, Symphony, Take5, Whatchamacallit, York Peppermint Patty, seasonal confectionary, and Hershey's baking bars, syrups, and spreads, which are made with cocoa beans from the Ivory Coast in Western Africa ("Chocolate Products").

4. Although Hershey's corporate business principles and supplier code prohibit both child and forced labor, Hershey is aware that cocoa beans from the Ivory Coast are produced using child labor, including the Worst Forms of Child Labor as recognized by the United Nations: the compulsory labor of trafficked children and the labor of children involving dangerous tools, transport of heavy loads, and exposure to toxic substances, i.e., hazardous work.<sup>1</sup>

5. The Bureau of International Labor Affairs of the U.S. Department of Labor confirms that cocoa beans from the Ivory Coast are likely the product of child and/or forced labor:<sup>2</sup>

6. The Bureau of International Labor Affairs of the U.S. Department of Labor reports that "children from within Côte d'Ivoire, as well as migrant children from Benin, Burkina Faso, Guinea, Mali, Nigeria, and Togo, are working under conditions of forced labor on Ivoirian cocoa farms. Based on the most recently available estimate from Tulane University, over 4,000 children work in conditions of forced labor in the production of cocoa in Côte d'Ivoire. Some children are sold by their parents to traffickers, some are kidnapped, and others migrate willingly but fall victim to traffickers who sell them to recruiters or farmers, where they end up in conditions of bonded labor. Some farmers buy the children and refuse to let them leave the farm until the debt of their purchase has been worked off. The children are frequently not paid for their work; some of their wages are paid to the recruiter or trafficker. These children are held against their will on isolated farms, are locked in their living quarters at night, and are threatened and beaten if they attempt to escape. They are punished by their employers with physical abuse. They are forced to work long hours, including overtime, and are required to work even when they are sick. Some children are denied sufficient food by their traffickers and employers. Some children are forced to perform dangerous tasks, including carrying heavy loads, using machetes and sharp tools, and applying pesticides and fertilizers."<sup>3</sup>

7. Moreover, a July 30, 2015, report entitled "Survey Research on Child Labor in West African Cocoa Growing Areas," prepared by the Payson Center for International Development of Tulane University and sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor, found that during the time period from 2013 to 2014 over 1.1 million children in the Ivory Coast were engaged in the most common Worst Forms of Child Labor, hazardous work, including the use of dangerous tools, transport of heavy loads, and exposure to toxic substances. This was up from the 791,181 children engaged in such work at the time of the last survey in 2008 to 2009. Put another way, the 22% of children engaged in such labor in 2008 to 2009 had increased to 31% of children in 2013 and 2014.<sup>4</sup>

8. "The USDOL-funded research found that over half of the children working on cocoa farms have been injured in work-related activities."<sup>5</sup> The 2015 Payson report found that 37% of those working in cocoa production experienced wounds/cuts while performing agricultural work and

11% experienced muscle pain. Thirty-one percent of children working in cocoa production experienced "very bad pain" when injured, and 11% were unable to continue working after being injured.<sup>6</sup>

9. Notwithstanding its awareness of the Worst Forms of Child Labor used to produce the cocoa beans used to make its Chocolate Products, Hershey does not disclose this to consumers at the point of purchase.

10. Knowing that Hershey Chocolate Products are likely the product of the Worst Forms of Child Labor is material to consumers not wishing to support such labor with their purchasing power. In the course of marketing and selling its Chocolate Products, however, Hershey materially omits and does not disclose the likelihood that its Chocolate Products are made with child and slave labor. Furthermore, Hershey does not disclose that despite its awareness that child and slave labor is being used in its supply chains, Hershey has not required all of its suppliers to remedy this human tragedy. Hershey, as one of the largest companies in the world, can dictate the terms by which cocoa beans are produced and supplied to it, including the labor conditions in the supply chain. But through its own inadequate efforts over the course of decades Hershey is presently not able to trace all of the cocoa beans that make up its Chocolate Products back to the cocoa plantations on which they are grown, much less ensure that the cocoa beans are not the product of child or slave labor. And meanwhile Hershey continues to profit from the child and forced labor that is used to make its Chocolate Products. This is shameful. Had Plaintiff and Class Members known the truth, they would not have purchased Hershey Chocolate Products or paid as much for them.

11. Hershey's material omissions and failure to disclose is all the more appalling considering that Hershey's Corporate Social Responsibility Report state that "Hershey has zero tolerance for the worst forms of child labor in its supply chain."<sup>7</sup> But Hershey does not live up to its own ideals. Hershey's public espousal of a message condemning child labor and its superior knowledge of the likelihood that the cocoa beans used to make its Chocolate Products are so produced obligate Hershey to disclose the truth to consumers at the point of sale.

12. Hershey's conduct described herein violates the (i) California's Business & Professions Code §§ 17200, et seq. (the Unfair Competition Law or "UCL"); (ii) California Civil Code §§ 1750, et seq. (the Consumers Legal Remedies Act or "CLRA"); and (iii) California's relief deemed appropriate by the court to which this case is assigned.

II. PARTIES

13. Plaintiff Laura Dana is and was at all relevant times a citizen of the State of California and resides in Brentwood, California. Plaintiff has purchased Hershey Chocolate Products at various retail stores including Target and Walmart in Brentwood and Antioch, California, from 2011 through 2014. Plaintiff saw the product packaging and labeling as well as signage in retail stores where she purchased the Chocolate Products. Plaintiff would not have purchased the Chocolate Products or paid as much for them had Nestlé disclosed the truth. Plaintiff seeks restitution and injunctive relief requiring Nestlé to cease its deceptive marketing.

14. Defendant The Hershey Company is a global chocolate food products company. The Hershey Company is incorporated in Delaware with its principal place of business in Hershey, Pennsylvania.

15. Defendant Hershey Chocolate & Confectionery Corporation is a subsidiary of The Hershey Company. The Hershey Chocolate & Confectionary Corporation is incorporated in Delaware with its principal place of business in Robinson, Illinois.

III. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

16. This Court has diversity jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d), because the amount in controversy for the Class exceeds $5,000,000, and the Class includes members who are citizens of a different state than Defendant.

1 17. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because it has offices and 2 conducts substantial business in this district and throughout the State of California. 3 Venue is proper in this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b), because Defendants have 18. 4 marketed and sold Chocolate Products within this district, and a substantial number of the acts and 5 omissions alleged herein occurred within this district. 6 IV. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS 7 A. The Worst Forms of Child Labor in the Ivory Coast Are Used to Produce Hershey's Chocolate Products. 8 19. Ivory Coast is the world's largest producer of cocoa, the raw ingredient that makes 9 chocolate.<sup>8</sup> an industry estimated to be worth more than $90 billion a year.<sup>9</sup> According to the World 10 Cocoa Foundation, "Cote d'Ivoire supplies more than 40% of the world's cocoa."<sup>10</sup> 11 20. "For more than 50 years, Hershey has been a major buyer of West African cocoa 12 beans, primarily Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana.<sup>11</sup> In fact, in Hershey's listing of primary sourcing 13 countries, the Ivory Coast is first.<sup>12</sup> 14 21. Hershey acknowledges, as it must, the child and slave labor in its Ivorian supply chain 15 for Chocolate Products. On October 3, 2012, Hershey stated that it would "accelerate its programs to 16 help eliminate child labor in the cocoa regions of West Africa."<sup>13</sup> And in its Executive Summary for 17 its 2014 Corporate Social Responsibility Report, Hershey stated that it was "actively involved in 18 large-scale efforts that are committed to rooting out forced labor, especially forced child labor, in our 19 20 <sup>8</sup> http://www.theguardian.com/global-development-professionals-network/2015/sep/02/child-21 labour-on-nestle-farms-chocolate-giants-problems-continue. 22 <sup>9</sup> http://www.bbc.com/news/world-africa-18644870. <sup>10</sup> http://worldcocoafoundation.org/wp-23 content/uploads/Economic Profile of the US Chocolate Industry 2011.pdf. 24 <sup>11</sup> http://www.thehershevcompany.com/social-responsibility/cocoa-sustainability.aspx. <sup>12</sup> Hershey's Corporate Social Responsibility Report. 25 26 http://www.thehersheycompany.com/pdfs/Hershey to Source 100 Certified Cocoa by 2020.pdf; http://www.thehersheycompany.com/social-responsibility/cocoa-sustainability/cocoa-27 certification.aspx. 28 COMPLAINT FOR VIOLATION OF CALIFORNIA CONSUMER PROTECTION LAWS - 6 -010545-11 811230 V1

cocoa supply chain.<sup>14</sup> In the report itself, Hershey further explained: "Given the importance of chocolate in our product portfolio, our first priority has been to address the sourcing of cocoa. Due to the complex socioeconomic circumstances in West Africa, where 70 percent of the world's cocoa is cultivated and the bulk of our supply is derived, there is a potential for human and labor rights abuses occurring within our supply chain. That is why we are actively involved in large-scale efforts that are committed to rooting out forced labor, especially forced child labor...in all of our chocolate products."<sup>15</sup>

22. Despite these acknowledgements, Hershey makes no disclosure regarding child or slave labor to consumers at the point of sale and the vast majority of consumers are unaware of these human rights abuses.

23. As the Food Empowerment Project describes in its article entitled Child Labor and Slavery in the Chocolate Industry, a "child's workday typically begins at six in the morning and ends in the evening.<sup>[18]</sup> Some of the children use chainsaws to clear the forests.<sup>[17]</sup> Other children climb the cocoa trees to cut bean pods using a machete. These large, heavy, dangerous knives are the standard tools for children on the cocoa farms.... Once they cut the bean pods from the trees, the children pack the pods into sacks that weigh more than 100 pounds when full and drag them through the forest.<sup>16</sup>

24. "Aly Diabate, a former cocoa slave, said, 'Some of the bags were taller than me. It took two people to put the bag on my head. And when you didn't hurry, you were beaten.' Holding a single large pod in one hand, each child has to strike the pod with a machete and pry it open with the tip of the blade to expose the cocoa beans. Every strike of the machete has the potential to slice a child's flesh. The majority of children have scars on their hands, arms, legs or shoulders from the

2	chemicals on cocoa farms in Western Africa." <sup>17</sup>
3	25. "Cases often involve acts of physical violence, such as being whipped for working
4	slowly or trying to escape. Reporters have also documented cases where children and adults were
5	locked in at night to prevent them from escaping. Former cocoa slave Aly Diabate told reporters,
6	'The beatings were a part of my life. I had seen others who tried to escape. When they tried, they
7	were severely beaten.' Drissa, a recently freed slave who had never even tasted chocolate,

11	26. In DOE I v. Nestlé USA Inc., the Ninth Circuit stated:
12	The use of child slave labor in the Ivory Coast is a humanitarian
13	tragedy. Studies by International Labour Organization, UNICEF, the Department of State, and numerous other organizations have confirmed that thousands of children are forced to work without pay in
14	the Ivorian economy. Besides the obvious moral implications, this widespread use of child slavery contributes to poverty in the Ivory
15	Coast, degrades its victims by treating them as commodities, and causes long-term mental and physical trauma. <sup>19</sup>

Africa." The Harkin-Engel Protocol noted that "while the scope of the problem is uncertain, the occurrence of the worst forms of child labor in the growing and processing of cocoa beans and their derivative products is simply unacceptable." #### The Industry Breaks this Promise Repeatedly in a Series of Follow-up Statements Postponing Their Deadline to 2008, to 2010, and now to 2020.

28. In a series of subsequent Joint Statement, the chocolate industry effectively kicks the can down the road on its promises.

29. On July 1, 2005, the industry issued a Joint Statement acknowledging that "[i]n September 2001, chocolate and cocoa industry representatives signed an agreement, developed in partnership with Senator Harkin and Representative Engel, to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in the growing of cocoa beans and their derivative products from West Africa. But "the July 1, 2005 deadline will not be fully met." That being said, the industry "assured Sen. Harkin and Rep. Engel that it is fully committed to achieving a certification system, which can be expanded across the cocoa-growing areas of West Africa and will cover 50% of the cocoa growing areas of Cote d'Ivoire and Ghana within three years." Senator Harkin stated, that he was "disappointed that the July 1 deadline established in the Protocol was not fully met," but he was "pleased that they have committed to redouble their efforts to create a certification system and eliminate the worst forms of child labor and forced labor in the cocoa fields and throughout the supply chain.<sup>22</sup>

34. "Since the start of the Tulane-USDOL collaboration in October 2006, Tulane has implemented several representative population-based household surveys of child labor in the cocoa sector, examined efforts by the international cocoa/chocolate industry and the governments of Côte d'Ivoire and Ghana to establish child labor monitoring, certification and verification systems, studied remediation activities and other interventions against the WFCL and FAL in the cocoa sector financed by the cocoa/chocolate industry and trained government officials in Cote d'Ivoire and Ghana to remediate the WFCL and monitor the number of children working in this sector. Tulane's research findings are reported in annual reports to the U.S. Congress.<sup>28</sup>

35. On March 31, 2011, the Payson Center released its report entitled, "Oversight of Public and Private Initiatives to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor in the Cocoa Section in Cote d'Ivoire and Ghana."<sup>29</sup> The report found that the chocolate industry's funding "has not been sufficient in light of its commitment to eliminate [the Worst Forms of Child Labor] in the cocoa sectors of Ghana and Cote d'Ivoire as per Article 1 of the Protocol." The report found that "important provisions of the Protocol have not yet been realized." For example, the chocolate industry has not met Article 6, "a key tenet of the Protocol with a 2005 deadline," because the chocolate industry "has only partly developed and not enforced industry-wide standards upholding ILO Convention 182 in the cocoa sectors of Cote d'Ivoire and Ghana." Rather, "the present level of Industry engagement of product certifiers allows these certifiers to cover only a small fraction of cocoa producing regions in each country."

36. The 2011 report further found that the chocolate industry had failed to achieve "its Joint Statement 2005 commitment to cover 50 percent of the two countries' cocoa-producing areas by July 2008 and has yet to accomplish the goals of the Joint Statement 2008 commitment of reaching 100% of the cocoa growing regions of both countries with remediation activities by the end of 2010." And it was not even close – the report found that remediation activities had only reached 3.8% of the cocoa growing region in the Ivory Coast.<sup>30</sup> Thus, the children in the region continue to engage in the Worst Forms of Child Labor, including hazardous work like carrying heavy loads, weeding and breaking cocoa pods using machetes, and spraying chemicals without any protective gear.

37. As CNN reported in 2012, "[d]uring the course of an investigation for [it]'s Freedom Project initiative – an investigation that went deep into the cocoa fields of Ivory Coast – a team of CNN journalists found that child labor, trafficking and slavery are rife in an industry that produces some of the world's best-known brands."<sup>31</sup> CNN reported on its encounter with one such modern child slave:

Chocolate's billion-dollar industry starts with workers like Abdul.
He squats with a gang of a dozen harvesters on an Ivory Coast farm.
Abdul holds the yellow cocoa pod lengthwise and gives it two quick cracks, snapping it open to reveal milky white cocoa beans. He dumps the beans on a growing pile.

Abdul is 10 years old, a three-year veteran of the job.

He has never tasted chocolate.

When Abdul's mother died, a stranger brought him across the border to the farm. Abdul says all he's given is a little food, the torn clothes on his back, and an occasional tip from the farmer. Abdul is a modern child slave.

38. As the U.S. Department of Labor itself reported in 2013, "children in Côte d'Ivoire continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, particularly on cocoa farms, sometimes under conditions of forced labor." The DOL further reported that over half of these children "were estimated to report injuries from dangerous activities" and that "[c]hildren from neighboring West African countries are trafficked into Côte d'Ivoire for agricultural labor, especially in cocoa production."<sup>32</sup>

39. The most recent report prepared by the Payson Center for International Development of Tulane University and sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor is dated July 30, 2015, and entitled "Survey Research on Child Labor in West African Cocoa Growing Areas." The summary document for the ninety-nine page report states that "the numbers of children working in cocoa production, in child labor in cocoa production, and in hazardous work in cocoa production have increased from 2008/09 to 2013/14," with the number of children doing hazardous work in cocoa production growing by 46%.<sup>33</sup>

40. Thus, Fair Trade International reported on August 4, 2015, that the "2013/2014 Survey Research on Child Labor in West African Cocoa-Growing Areas released last week by the Tulane University shows that child labor in cocoa production is on the rise in West Africa."<sup>34</sup>

41. More specifically, the 2015 Payson Report found that during the time period from 2013 to 2014 over 1.1 million children in the Ivory Coast were engaged in the most common Worst Forms of Child Labor, hazardous work, including the use of dangerous tools, transport of heavy loads, and exposure to pesticides. This was up from the 791,181 children engaged in such work at the time of the last survey in 2008 to 2009. Put another way, the 22% of children engaged in such labor in 2008 to 2009 had increased to 31% of children in 2013 and 2014.<sup>35</sup>

42. "The 2015 Payson Report concluded that "[a]fter increases in the total number of children working in the cocoa sector in both countries combined, 1.5 million children still have to be removed from hazardous work by 2020 in order to reach the Framework of Action target."

However, "[w]ith production growing and increasing global demand for cocoa beans, production methods and/or child labor mitigation strategies need to change drastically to achieve major progress."<sup>36</sup>

43. As the Fair Labor Association noted with respect to another major U.S. chocolate manufacturer, although "Nestlé does not own or operate farms in Côte d'Ivoire," it "is well positioned to make a positive impact on the livelihoods of workers in the cocoa supply chain … due to its leverage with its suppliers and the volume of cocoa beans it procures."<sup>37</sup> Likewise, Hershey has had the opportunity to take effective advantage of such leverage since 2001 to eliminate child and slave labor from its Ivorian supply chain as it promised, but it has failed to do so – and accordingly it has failed an entire generation of West African children.

44. In sum, Hershey's intention to obtain 100% of its cocoa from certified sources by 2020 – whether it comes true or not – does not free Hershey from its obligation to provide disclosures to consumers at the point of sale regarding the existence of child and slave labor that indisputably has existed and continues to exist in Hershey's supply chain for Chocolate Products, based on Hershey's superior knowledge of its supply chain. And even were the Ivorian human rights abuses a problem that Hershey was powerless to resolve (it is not), Hershey would still be obligated to disclose to consumers at the point of sale the existence of child and slave labor in its supply chain for Chocolate Products. The vast majority of consumers are not aware of the human rights abuses and reasonable consumers would not have purchased Hershey Chocolate Products had they known the truth.

1 cooperative or a pisteur. There are about 700 cooperatives in the country and around 5,000 2 independent pisteurs. These are roving buyers/salesmen who call on farmers to buy as much cocoa 3 as they can. They're called pisteurs because they go up and down the pistes or rough tracks which 4 lead to the cocoa villages. The cooperatives and pisteurs sell to larger middlemen called traitants, 5 who in turn sell to exporters, who sell to traders who sell to processors." "The beans from many 6 different trees and farms are then combined and increasingly larger quantities are sold from one 7 buyer to the next until the beans reach the shipping port. Here, beans from literally thousands of villages are combined into large shipments to countries across the world."38 8

46. According to the World Cocoa Foundation, "47% of the total U.S. imports of cocoa beans come from Cote d'Ivoire."<sup>39</sup>

47. Hershey works with large intermediaries like Barry Callebault, ECOM, Cargil, and ADM to import its cocoa. Hershey then purchases cocoa from these entities and uses the cocoa to manufacture its Chocolate Products, which are distributed to retail locations throughout the United States.

48. At the retail location, a consumer reviewing the packaging for Hershey Chocolate Products will find no disclosure of the likelihood that child or forced labor was used to produce the cocoa beans in the supply chain for Hershey Chocolate Products:

49. While Hershey does market Bliss, Dagoba and Scharffen Berger products as certified by the Rainforest Alliance,<sup>40</sup> their labels either simply reference the certification or innocuously state that Rainforest Alliance Certified farms "promote the rights and well-being of workers" – so as to not tip off the vast majority of consumers who do not know about the child and forced labor that otherwise admittedly exists in Hershey's supply chain for Chocolate Products. For those who are aware, Rainforest Alliance is a certification that does not permit such labor.<sup>41</sup> Hershey's Bliss, Dagoba and Scharffen Berger products are excluded from the Chocolate Products.

50. In sum, nowhere on the packaging for any of the Chocolate Products is there any disclosure to the consumer of the child and/or slave labor conditions used to produce the cocoa beans in Hershey's Ivorian supply chain, as there should be on all of the Chocolate Products.

Hershey Recognizes that the Use of Child or Slave Labor in its Supply Chain Is Wrong.

51. Hershey explicitly states in its 2014 Corporate Social Responsibility Report that it "has zero tolerance for the worst forms of child labor in its supply chain (as defined by International Labor Organization Conventions 138 and 182)."<sup>42</sup>

52. In its Supplier Code of Conduct, Hershey likewise states that it "is committed to the elimination of the 'worst forms of child labor,' as defined by International Labor Organization (ILO) Convention 138 & 182, from its supply chain."<sup>43</sup> Hershey specifically lists the following prohibited child labor practices – all of which occur in its supply chain for Chocolate Products:

- Children should not be kept from school to work on the farm.
- Children should not carry heavy loads that harm their physical development.
- Children should not be present on the farm while farm

14	54. In summary, although Hershey recognizes that the use of child and/or slave labor in
15	its supply chain is wrong and its corporate social responsibility report and supplier code explicitly

19 20	D. Hershey's Use of the Worst Forms of Child Labor in Its Chocolate Products Supply Chain Is Material to Consumers
20 21	55. Consumers have become sensitive to the human cost behind the products that they
21	buy. This sensitivity transcends industries and ranges from products as diverse as clothing to coffee.
22 22	56. A Harvard University study examined consumer willingness to pay a premium for that the producer not use forced and child labor in the production of its coffee.<sup>47</sup> The study found that consumers in online auctions were willing to pay an average of 23% more for coffee certified as Fair Trade.<sup>48</sup>

57. A 2006 study by researchers at the University of Michigan analyzed consumer purchases to determining consumer willingness to pay a premium for athletic socks marked with a Good Working Conditions ("GWC") label.<sup>49</sup> The study concluded that 30% of consumers in a working class neighborhood of Detroit were willing to pay a 20% price premium (from $1.00 to $1.20) for GWC labeled socks compared to non-GWC labeled socks.<sup>50</sup>

A 2011 study lead by researchers at Harvard University studied consumer willingness 58. to pay a premium for polo shirts sold with an SA8000 certification on eBay.<sup>51</sup> The SA8000 10 certification prohibits the use of child labor and forced labor and discrimination based on race, gender, and religion. The code mandates that workers be allowed to organize and bargain 13 collectively with their employers. The SA8000 code also requires that workplaces satisfy minimum 14 health and safety standards, pay minimum (living) wages, and that overtime work is voluntary, limited, and paid at a premium.<sup>52</sup> "On average, shoppers paid a 45% premium for labeled versus unlabeled shirts. 1 59. Another survey by FishWise, a non-profit marine conservation organization, further 2 elucidates consumer willingness to pay when there are human rights abuses in supply chains. 3 Eighty-eight percent of consumers stated that they would stop buying a product if it was associated with human rights abuses.<sup>54</sup> The survey further revealed that 70% percent of consumers would pay 4 more for a product certified to be free of human rights abuses.<sup>55</sup> FishWise noted that, "survey results 5 6 indicate that human rights are important to seafood consumers and many of them are willing to avoid high risk products and pay more for those that are certified to be free of abuses."<sup>56</sup> 7 8 60. Hershey is well aware of this consumer sensitivity and has mounted its public 9 relations effort to position itself as a company that does not permit child and slave labor in its supply 10 chain. Its hollow public relations statements mask the tragic truth that millions of African children 11 are engaged in the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Had consumers known the truth, they would not 12 have purchased or paid as much for Hershey Chocolate Products. 13 V. CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS 14 61. Under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Plaintiff seeks certification of 15 a Class defined as follows: 16 All consumers who purchased Hershey Chocolate Products in California during the four years prior to the filing of the complaint. 17 62. Excluded from the Class are Defendants: the officers, directors or employees of 18 Defendant; any entity in which Defendants have a controlling interest; and any affiliate, legal 19 representative, heir or assign of Defendants. Also, excluded from the Class are any federal, state or 20 local governmental entities, any judicial officer presiding over this action and the members of his/her 21 immediate family and judicial staff, and any juror assigned to this action. 22 23 24 25 <sup>54</sup> FishWise, Trafficked II: An updated summary of human rights abuses in the seafood industry (2014), at p. 6, available at http://www.fishwise.org/services/human-rights. 26 <sup>55</sup> Id. 27 <sup>56</sup> Id. at 7. 28 COMPLAINT FOR VIOLATION OF CALIFORNIA CONSUMER PROTECTION LAWS - 22 -010545-11 811230 V1

- 63. Plaintiff does not know the exact number of Class Members at the present time.However, due to the nature of the trade and commerce involved, there appear to be millions of ClassMembers such that joinder of all Class members is impracticable.
- 64. The Class is ascertainable by objective criteria permitting self-identification in response to notice, and notice can be provided through techniques similar to those customarily used in other consumer fraud cases and complex class actions, and through Hershey's business records.

65. There are questions of law and fact common to the Class. Defendants' unlawful omissions similarly impact Class Members, all of who purchased one or more Chocolate Products.

- 66. Plaintiff asserts claims that are typical of the Class. Plaintiff and all Class Members have been subjected to the same wrongful conduct because they all have purchased Defendants' Chocolate Products that were not disclosed as likely sourced from suppliers using child and/or forced labor. As a result, and like other members of the Class, Plaintiff purchased and paid an amount for Chocolate Products which she otherwise would not have paid.
- 67. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the Class.Plaintiff is represented by counsel competent and experienced in both consumer protection and class action litigation.
- 68. Class certification is appropriate because Defendants have acted on grounds that apply generally to the Class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the Class as a whole.
- 69. Class certification is also appropriate because common questions of law and fact substantially predominate over any questions that may affect only individual members of the Class, including, inter alia, the following:
  - a. Whether Defendants failed to disclose the likelihood that the Worst Forms of Child Labor were used in their Chocolate Products supply chain;
  - b. Whether the likelihood that the Worst Forms of Child Labor were used in Hershey's Chocolate Products supply chain would be material to a reasonable consumer;

1 2	c. Whether Defendants had a duty to disclose the likelihood that the Worst Forms of Child Labor were used in their Chocolate Products supply chain;
3	d. Whether Defendants' nondisclosures were likely to deceive a reasonable consumer;
4 5	e. Whether Defendants' conduct violates the UCL, FAL and CLRA;
6	f. Whether the challenged practices harmed Plaintiff and members of the Class; and
7 8	g. Whether Plaintiff and members of the Class are entitled to restitutionary, injunctive, or other relief.
9	70. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient
10	adjudication of this controversy, since joinder of all the individual Class Members is impracticable.
11	Furthermore, because the restitution and/or damages suffered, and continue to be suffered, by each
12	individual Class Member may be relatively small, the expense and burden of individual litigation
13	would make it very difficult or impossible for individual Class Members to redress the wrongs done
14	to each of them individually and the burden imposed on the judicial system would be enormous.
15	71. The prosecution of separate actions by the individual Class Members would create a
16	risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications, which would establish incompatible standards of
17	conduct for Defendants. In contrast, the conduct of this action as a class action presents far fewer
18	management difficulties, conserves judicial resources and the parties' resources, and protects the
19	rights of each Class Member.

24	73. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 prohibits any "unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent
25	business act or practice." Defendants have engaged in unlawful, and unfair, and fraudulent business

74. Defendants have violated the unlawful prong by virtue of its violations of the CLRA, 2 as described below.

75. Defendants have violated the unfair prong of section 17200 because the acts and practices set forth in the Complaint offend established public policies against the use of child and slave labor and the sale of products tainted by the use of child and slave labor and supporting truth in advertising to consumers. Defendants' participation in a supply chain involving the Worst Forms of Child Labor is immoral, unethical, oppressive, unscrupulous and injurious to consumers. The harm that these acts and practices cause greatly outweighs any benefits associated with them. Defendants' conduct also impairs competition within the market for chocolate products, and prevents Plaintiff and Class Members from making fully informed decisions about the kind of chocolate products to purchase or the price to pay for such products.

76. Defendants have violated the fraudulent prong of section 17200 because, as set forth above, its material omissions were likely to deceive a reasonable consumer and the true facts would be material to a reasonable consumer.

77. Defendants had a duty to disclose the likelihood of the child and/or slave labor in their supply chain, arising from (1) their superior knowledge of Hershey s's supply chain and the practices of its suppliers as compared to consumers, e.g. through Hershey s's years of experience marketing and distributing Chocolate Products made from cocoa bean from the Ivory Coast; and (2) their partial representations and/or misrepresentations to the contrary.

78. As alleged herein, Hershey failed to disclose the likelihood of child and/or slave labor in its supply chain for Chocolate Products. Nor does Hershey disclose that despite its awareness of child and/or slave labor in its Chocolate Products supply chains, it has not required its suppliers to remedy the ongoing human rights abuses.

79. These omissions would be material to a reasonable consumer.

directly and proximately injured by Defendants' conduct and lost money as a result of Defendants' 2 material omissions, because they would not have purchased nor paid as much for Chocolate Products 3 had they known the truth.

82. All of the wrongful conduct alleged herein occurred, and continues to occur, in the conduct of Defendants' business. Defendants' wrongful conduct is part of a general practice that is still being perpetuated and repeated throughout the State of California.

83. Plaintiff requests that this Court enter such orders or judgments as may be necessary to enjoin Defendant from continuing its unfair and deceptive business practices, to restore to Plaintiff and members of the Class any money that Defendants acquired by unfair competition, and to provide such other relief as set forth below.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

VIOLATIONS OF THE FALSE ADVERTSING LAW (CAL. BUS. & PROF CODE §§ 17500, et seq.)

98. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates by reference all paragraphs alleged herein.

99. California Business & Professions Code §§ 17500, et seq. (the "FAL") broadly proscribes deceptive advertising in this State. Section 17500 makes it unlawful for any corporation intending to sell products or perform services to make any statement in advertising those products or services concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance or disposition thereof, which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading, or not to sell those products or services as advertised at the price stated therein, or as so advertised.

100. When the seller has a duty to disclose material facts about a product, the sale of the product to consumers without disclosure of such material facts runs afoul of the FAL.

101. As alleged herein, Hershey failed to disclose the likelihood of child and/or slave labor in the supply chain for its Chocolate Products. Nor does Hershey disclose that despite its awareness of child and/or slave labor in its Chocolate Products supply chains, it has not required all of its suppliers to remedy the ongoing human rights abuses.

102. Hershey had a duty to disclose the likelihood of child and/or forced labor in its supply chain, arising from (1) its superior knowledge of Hershey's supply chain and the practices of its suppliers as compared to consumers, e.g. through Hershey's years of experience marketing and distributing Chocolate Products made from Ivorian cocoa beans; and (2) Hershey's partial representations and/or misrepresentations to the contrary.

103. These omissions would be material to a reasonable consumer.

104. Reasonable consumers are likely to be deceived by Defendants' material omissions.

- 28 -

105. Defendants knew or reasonably should know that the marketing and sale of its Chocolate Products was and is deceptive.

106. Plaintiff has suffered injury in fact, including the loss of money, as a result of Defendants' unlawful, unfair, and/or deceptive practices. Plaintiff and members of the Class were directly and proximately injured by Defendants' conduct and lost money as a result of Defendants' material omissions, because they would not have purchased nor paid as much for Defendants'
Chocolate Products had they known the truth.

107. All of the wrongful conduct alleged herein occurred, and continues to occur, in the conduct of Defendants' business. Defendants' wrongful conduct is part of a general practice that is still being perpetuated and repeated throughout the State of California.

108. Plaintiff requests that this Court enter such orders or judgments as may be necessary to enjoin Defendants from continuing its deceptive advertising, to restore to Plaintiff and members of the Class any money that Defendants unlawfully acquired, and to provide such other relief as set forth below.

Civil Procedure Section 1021.5 for the benefit conferred upon the general public of the State of California by any injunctive or other relief entered herein.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, respectfully requests that this Court enter a judgment against Defendants and in favor of Plaintiff, and grant the following relief:

A. Determine that this action may be maintained as a class action with respect to the Class identified herein and certify it as such under Rules 23(b)(2) and/or 23(b)(3), or alternatively certify all issues and claims that are appropriately certified, and designate and appoint Plaintiff as Class Representatives and their counsel as Class Counsel;

 B. Declare, adjudge and decree the conduct of Defendant as alleged herein to be unlawful, unfair and/or deceptive;

26 C. Enjoin Defendants from continuing the unfair and deceptive marketing and sale of 27 their Chocolate Products;

1	DECLARATION RE CLRA VENUE
2	I, Laura Dana, do hereby declare and state as follows:
3	1. I am a party plaintiff in the above captioned action. Pursuant to Cal. Civ. Code δ
4	1780(d), I make this declaration in support of the Class Action Complaint and the claim therein for
5	relief under Cal. Civ. Code § 1780(a). I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein and, if
6	necessary, could competently testify thereto.
7	2. This action for relief under Cal. Civ. Code § 1780(a) has been commenced in a county
8	that is a proper place for trial of this action because the Hershey Company does business throughout
9	the State of California.
10	This declaration is signed under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California
11	this 24 day of September 2015.
